

WRITE HERE WRITE NOW!

As our girl about town's hectic diary shows, there are some things in life that you simply can't be without. Starting with an AT Cross pen.

11am

Woke up late. Jogged over to South Ken for coffee with Samantha. Over the froth of my cappuccino, made eye contact with a rather handsome actor type. Was that a film script he was scribbling at? Whatever! When his biro ran out, I offered him use of Samantha's AT Cross Ion pen. It's so neat, she can just slip it into her purse. Got his number too. Result!

1pm

Was just running an aromatherapy bath when the door bell went. The most amazing bunch of lillies. No card. How tantalising is that? Quickly signed for them with my brand new AT Cross Townsend Lustrous Chrome pen, took the phone off the hook and hopped into the water. This afternoon the Princess is chilling!

4pm

Searching through my videos, I come across It's a Wonderful Life. Which reminds me. I must make a start on my Christmas cards. Luckily, my brother left behind his AT Cross Century II when he came over last week. Such a smooth operator (the AT Cross, not my brother). Can't remember the last time I actually enjoyed writing Christmas cards.

7pm

Popped into my local for a couple of drinks and guess who was there? Simon Wotishisname from the New York office. Seems there's a job going across the pond. Style guru that he is, he took my number with a rather swish AT Cross MicroPen, designed especially for PDAs. Made a mental note to get one for all the techies in my life.

11pm

Gino's was packed tonight. Had the calamari and rather too much champagne. Still, it was my birthday. When the bill came around, John insisted on paying for us all. And, I couldn't help but notice, he used a rather stylish AT Cross Morph to sign on the dotted line. Uummm. Samantha's right. He is very good looking.

1am

Make-up off. Jim jams on. Maybe I'll just have one teensie weensie nightcap. It suddenly occurs to me. With Christmas coming up, why not do the easy thing and buy everyone I know an AT Cross pen? All I've got to do now is decide which Department Store or pen shop to buy them at. Sometimes, life is so simple.

For your nearest stockist, call 01582 422 793.

The AT Cross Century (in blue) and the AT Cross Townsend Lustrous Chrome.